3. The students underwent normal military training for higher schools, which included drill, training with small arms and sharp-shooting. For firing practices they used Officers' School Firing Range in KARLOWICE (suburb in north of KROKOW). They were issued with live ammunition only at the firing range.

4. Instruction also included lectures on atomic warfare. These lectures dealt with Atom and Hydrogen bomb, radio-active contamination and methods of protection. Instructions concerned mainly how to make use of obstructions as protection from atomic heat and blast. Students were shown protective clothing which consisted of a canvas cape, which was also to be used for moving forward, by spreading it over the ground to be crossed, canvas boots reaching well above the knee, gloves, and gas mask. For specialized units there were rubberized suits.
